Wooley have brought suit against young Spreckels's fainer and brothers, John D., and A. B. spreckels, and other directors of the Hawatian ommercial and Sugar Company. Charges of traud and attempt to crowd out the plaintiff and other stockholders are made.

spreckels and Wooley claim to own 905 hares of the capital stock of the company, worth $1,500,000. C. A. Spreckels claims to own 900 shares, 700 of which stand on the broks in the name of Claus Spreckels and the other 200 in the name of H. L. Dodge. He alleges that the directors have refused to transer the shares to him, pursuant to a frandulent

TENTH AVENUE MERCHANTS VICTIMS

OF A PRECIOUS PAIR.

THEFT AFTER THEFT ON SIDEWALKS.

Within two weeks more than a dozen petty larcenies have occurred on Tenth avenue, between Fifty-fourth and Fifty-sixth sixth streets. The victims are store keepers whose habit it has been to exhibit a part of their goods in front of their stores. Other thefts have taken place in other parts of the precinct, the two weeks who have suffered say that Honores Patrick Finness and being on until middight one night and place in other parts of the precinct, the Twenty-second, the station-house of which is on West Forty-seventh street. The storekeepers who have suffered say that they have rported the thefts to collicemen on post, but have got little or no satisfaction.

Some storekeepers have been robbed several times. The method of operation of the thieves is simple. So far as the shopkeepers can judge there are only two of them. These two begin work about 6 P. M., when the streets are filled with people and when the night is fast approaching. They saunter slowly along with people and when the night is fast approaching. The man with the bag crossed the street while his companion stole three pairs of shoes and tucked them out of sight beneath his evercoat. Later they stole a sweater and some fiannel from the hooks in front of the dry-goods store of J. Turney, No. 837 Tenth avenue.

A reporter tracked the vehicle to Jones's Woods yesterday. It is stored, when not used, resembles an ordinary mail phaeton, the proback of the seat. The seat will carry two pasengers. The wheels have solid rubber tires, the leather top, lights and other appointments esembling an ordinary carriage. The motor vagon is of a type said to be popular in Germade. Emperor William has ridden to the one t Jones's Woods. He journeyed from Maxau to Lauterberg, a distance of fifteen miles, in hirty-five minutes, an average speed of 2,20 to the mile. The ordinary speed is at the rat

The motor is driven by gas which is gene ted as needed from ordinary benzine which is carried in a closed copper tank under he seat. From this tank the benzine passes to a smaller supply tank, from which it passes to a smaller supply tank, from which it passes to the generator, where a volume of air is met. The resulting gas is then ignited by an electric spark. The expense of running a wagon is one-half cent per mile. For long runs 250 miles may be covered at an expense of 28 cents. Three and one-half gallons of benzine, which is one filling of the tank, will run the wagon for ten hours.

The wagon is a German invention, and was first introduced at the Munich Exposition in 1888. The speed is regulated at will and the steering done by the valves before the seat, some of those who have used the wagon this week are Mr. and Mrs. John C. Calhoun, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Pancoast, of Philadelphia. Willis Holly, Leicester Holme, Jac Ruppert, J. C. Delaverme and Matthew Riley, the last two prominent members of the New York Driving Club. All enjoyed the novelty.

One of these carriages will cost about $1,500 to $2,000. The inventor says William Esswein, of Ludwigshafen on the Rhine, drives to his country house fifteen miles out of the city four times daily and has for two years. He goes to town in the carriage after breakfast. At noon he rides home to luncheon, after which he returns to the town again, and at the close of the day returns to his country house. He covers the sixty miles at an average speed of 2.40 to the nulle.

In its fally trips now the carrange passes John to triumins a stable. His coachman, who is worth quoting as an expert says it should be a success for country driving. But for city use. he added, 'no machine can take the place of a skilled hand on the box. But then, people scoffed at Robert Fulton when he began.
